This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

It would be a great benefit, not only to those who are engaged in particular lines of enquiry, but to the cause of literature in general, if those who have the custody of books which are not common, would furnish such lists of them as, without being large or expensive, would be sufficient to make known their existence and the places where they may be actually seen.

To make a complete catalogue of a great library with proper care and accuracy is a laborious, tedious, and expensive business; but I am only speaking of concise lists, comprehending exclusively such books as are not commonly to be met with. Their titles might be selected from larger catalogues, or even copied from the books themselves (which are not likely to be numerous) with little trouble; and the lists thus formed might be printed at a very small expense. No great bibliographical knowledge would be required. The date, if one were to be found, might be a sufficient guide; or, if that were wanting, the safety of inserting doubtful cases would be so obvious as to prevent all embarrassment; and the worst evil of error on such a point would be, that the list might contain a small quantity of superfluous matter. There are few collections, except our great public libraries, which contain so many English books printed before the year 1600 (I might perhaps better say before the Rebellion) as to make a mere list of them very voluminous; and a mere list is all that we absolutely want. If we can get full and accurate catalogues of such collections, so much the better; for every work of that kind is not only valuable intrinsically for the information which it contains, but as a correction of mistakes and mis-statements which have been made and copied by one bibliographer after another.

But all, I repeat, that we can reasonably ask for, and almost all that we really want for practical purposes, and as the first step towards something in the nature of a more full and correct history of English literature, are mere lists to tell us where we may actually see scarce books, and books only known to have existed by defective or incorrect descriptions, or others not known to have existed at all. Indeed if I were not fully aware that it contains errors and defects, and sensible that my words might be taken in an invidious sense, I should say that the following Index is a specimen of the sort of list which I have been attempting to describe. Yet I know not why I should hesitate to say this, as it obviously makes no pretension to learning or critical accuracy, such as should characterize a regular Catalogue. Its aim is to give as briefly as possible such a description of the book as may identify it; and to attest the existence of that book in the Lambeth Library. For such a purpose, full and critical descriptions are not necessary. As it respects their authors and contents, many books may be as clearly identified,—indeed, one may say as fully described,—by two words as by twenty lines. What need we add to such titles as "Polichronicon," or "The Golden Legend," or "Chaucer's Works?" and as respects the edition, when we have stated the particulars of its size, and its place, printer, and date, or its want of any of those marks, what more need we say? If all these things, or the want of them, leave the book doubtful, it is just one of those cases for which we want such lists,—a case for specific enquiry; and the only further information of any use, is that conveyed by telling us where we may actually see the book.

With this view of the matter I have generally set down books, according to their obvious pretensions, as printed at Rome, Strasburgh, Basil, Roan, Waterford, &c. without inquiring whether they were really printed at the places of which they bear the names. In one or two of them I have ventured to suggest that not only the place, as is obvious, is false, but that Singleton's mark, which some have treated as genuine, is a forgery. But for the most part I have merely given the places as they stand, the object being that the reader should know what book is meant with as few words and as little trouble as possible. I have, therefore, not been careful to preserve all the varieties of obsolete spelling, and have abridged the titles, especially where I have had it in my power to refer to a notice of the book in Herbert's edition of Ames's Typographical Antiquities. I must, however, caution the reader that by these references I do not vouch for the accuracy of all the descriptions to which I refer, though it would be inconsistent with the design of these pages to enter into any criticism or correction of them. Where Herbert described a book that lay before him he deserves all praise for the care and fidelity with which he did it; but many of those descriptions, which he very properly took from other sources, are defective or incorrect, and some are quite absurd. The reader, therefore, who looks out the reference will sometimes find only a few words, and most of them incorrect; or perhaps longer descriptions only differing by containing more blunders. For instance, Dr. Matthew Sutcliffe's book, "De Presbyterio, eiusque nova in Ecclesia Christiana Politeia," &c. printed by George Bishop and Ralph Newbery, in 1591, is not proved by Herbert's work ever to have been printed at all. We only learn that licenses for it were granted by the Stationers' Company to those two printers. The former is recorded at vol. II. p. 1154, simply by these words, "Dr. Sucklif de Presbyteriū, &c.;" and the latter, at page 918, by these, "Dr. Syklif De Presbiteriū." The book which stands in this Index as "The Fanne of the Faithful," printed by Thomas Marsh in 1578, is (one can scarcely doubt) the same which is only mentioned cursorily in a list made in the year 1591, of copies which had belonged to that printer, as "The Fame of the Faithful." The "Straunge Sonet intituled Gordon, or the wonderfull yeare," (Herbert II. 1180,) will be found restored to its true title Gorgon; and "Stabbe Peter a high Jermayne borne, a Sorcerer, who in the likeness of a Wolfe cōmited many murders 25 yeres together," (vol. II. p. 1222,) is re-instated in the less characteristic name of Stubbe. Some readers have probably been puzzled by the brief title under which a book was licensed to Thomas Woodcock in the year 1581, "Eiphnapxia, siue Elizabetha," (Herb. II. 1112,) and, indeed, any but a Greek Œdipus might be startled by such a word. The true title (as the reader may see by turning to the name Ocland in this Index) is "EIPHNAPXIA siue Elizabetha. De pacatissimo Angliæ statu, imperante Elizabetha, compendiosa Oratio," &c.; and I mention it here, because, though the title occurs again in Herbert (Vol. II. p. 1081) more fully, and in some points more intelligibly; yet those who have a little Latin and no Greek are more likely to be puzzled and misled, than even by the unintelligible Eiphnapxia, when they find "pacatissimo" changed to "peccatissimo." Sometimes, indeed, the reference is so far from furnishing the reader with additional information, that the chief good of making it is to show that the work is in existence to amend the incorrect or defective description. Thus one of the MarPrelate tracts (and I believe one of the rarest) is only mentioned by Herbert in these terms, which have I dare say puzzled many of his readers, and probably himself too; for if he had possessed more information he would have given it: "Martins Minerals is reckoned among MarPrelate's pieces." (III. 1699, referring to Collier's Eccl. Hist. II. 606.) I presume that it must refer to a broadside bearing the following title—"Certaine Minerall and Metaphisicall Schoolpoints to be defended by the Reuerende Bishops and the rest of my Cleargie Masters of the Conuocation House, against bothe Vniuersities, and al the Reformed Churches in Christendome. Wherin is layd open, the very Quintessence of all Catercorner diuinitie. And with all, to the preuenting of the Cauels of these wrangling Puritans, the persons by whom and the places where these misteries are so worthely maintayned, are for the most part set down to the view of all men, and that to the ternal prayse of the most reuerend Fathers." Again, careful and intelligent as Herbert was in the technical part of bibliography, his conjectures as to authorship and matters of literature in general are not always happy. At Vol. I. p. 434, he tells us that in the year 1539 Th. Berthelet printed a book, entitled "Expositio in L. Psalmos priores;" and he adds, (one would like to know why,) "Probably by Thomas Aquinas." The reader who turns to the name of Sampson, Bishop of Chichester, in the following Index, will perhaps think it more probable that the work of that prelate was meant. These specimens will suffice to show that I do not mean to vouch for the correctness of all the descriptions in Herbert's work, to which I refer; but at the same time let it not be supposed that I am blaming him. In all that he understood he may be depended on more than almost any other man. His diligence and care in seeing so many books, and describing so well what he saw himself, is exemplary; and the next best thing that he could do was to give us what other and less careful people had said, just in their own words.

Where I have not found a book mentioned by Herbert, I have prefixed this mark *, by which I do not mean to assert that the book was not known to him, or even not mentioned by him; for who can say what may lie hidden under some of the grotesque titles to which I have alluded, which he copied from the books of the Stationers' Company, and which in his work lie in confused heaps, almost useless for want of an index? Some, indeed, I have lighted on there, and there only, as will be seen by my references; but as to the asterisk, all that I mean to express by it is, that I have not found the book in Herbert's work, though (as I may venture to say, while setting before the reader about a thousand references to it) I have spent a good deal of time in turning over its pages. It will be observed, however, that the asterisk is not unfrequently accompanied by a reference to Herbert. This is intended to intimate that though the identical book is not mentioned by him, yet something connected with it may be found at that page of his work,—such as a fuller account of its contents from some other edition—or a title not exactly the same, yet so much like that of the book before me, that though I feel pretty sure of its not being meant for that book, yet I think it right that the reader should judge for himself,—or, in short, that for some reason or other which I trust to his sagacity to discover, it is worth his while, if he is interested about the book, to turn to that page of the Typographical Antiquities.

In more than twenty articles the name of Herbert is followed by the word "Lambeth;" and this intimates that he referred to the copy in this library as the source of his information. Considering his ardour and diligence, and that he owed his introduction to this library to a man of such knowledge and congenial taste as Dr. Michael Lort, then one of the chaplains to the Archbishop, it is singular that ten times as many scarce and curious books escaped his notice. I am sorry to add on this point, that he mentions one book (Barlaam's, Vol. III. p. 1405.) as being in this library, which I have not been able to find, though the catalogue confirms his statement. But there seems to have been some original error in the entry of the press-mark, to which, as it stands, there is not and does not appear to have been any corresponding number on the shelves. I have no doubt that the book is in the library; but, as it consists of but nineteen leaves, it is probably bound up with other works, and I can only hope that it will be some day detected. It is much to be regretted that so cumbrous a method, and one so sure to breed error, was used in numbering the books; but as I have somewhat retrenched it in these pages for the sake of strangers who would be liable to be puzzled by seeing "8vo" appended to the number of a book just described as a 4to or a 12mo, I ought, for the sake of those who may use this Index in the library, or compare it with the catalogues there, to add, that in all numbers on which a doubt can arise, the "8vo" ought to be added to the press-mark, unless it is already distinguished by an "f."

These marks have no reference to the size of the books; but on that point I would make one remark. The reader must not lay too much stress on the distinction between octavo, small octavo, and sixteens, or even duodecimos. Those who are conversant with the class of books which form a large part of those described in the following pages are aware, not only that these distinctions have not been very consistently made by catalogue-makers, but also that it is a matter in which it is not easy to maintain consistency.

It may be proper also to explain that the "List" which is in a few cases referred to, is a list of some of the early printed books in the library, which I printed about two years ago. It contains a more full account of all the English books which are in this Index of a date earlier than the year 1550; but it is only referred to in the following pages for certain "Fragments" which I found, chiefly as end-papers and fly-leaves, and of which I there gave some description; and I ought perhaps to say, that for the reasons there assigned I have pursued the same course as I then did, and have not inserted in this Index the English Bibles and Prayer-Books.

It will be seen that under the name of "English Books" I comprehend all books in the English language wherever printed, and all books in whatever language if printed in England. With the exception of a few of the earliest books printed at Westminster (and too well known to occasion any mistake), the reader will understand that all those books which are not stated to be without place, and have no other place mentioned, were professedly printed in London.
